monthly rainfalls

daily temperatures in July 2019

Further Information:

There were several days of great heat and dryness, which stressed the plants very much. Last days in July brought recently much needed rainfall and cooler temperatures. Although the rainfall regionally turned out very differently.

The early ripening varieties are in full flowering modus, late maturing varieties are getting to this point. The pest pressure is still under control. In some regions powdery mildew is more noticeable, as well as the red spider mite. In order to resolve this, plant protection measures were necessary.
